- Understand whether a learner can comprehend in various reading (or listening) situations
- Determine the child's instructional reading level
- Identify the skills and strategies the student needs to learn in order to become a better reader

DECIDE

- Make data-based decisions
- Differentiate reading instruction

GUIDE

- Select texts that will compel readers to think

GUIDE

The Three Steps to Effective Guided Reading Lessons

- Pinpoint an instructional focus
- Select an appropriate text that is slightly challenging
- Determine which teaching points will scaffold readers so they can take the next step in becoming more independent

A Logical Sequence for Scaffolding Readers and Selecting Teaching Points

Monitoring—First and foremost, if the reader is not monitoring for meaning, we scaffold, prompt, and teach this foundational skill.

Decoding—If the reader stops at a tricky word, then we prompt for decoding strategies and reinforce decoding as a teaching point.

Fluency—Fluency comes next because once a reader develops automaticity with words and decoding, he or she is ready to be prompted for fluency.

Vocabulary—It is common for skilled decoders to plow right through unknown words, decode them accurately, but not use the context clues to figure out the meaning of the word. Scaffolding vocabulary is an ideal teaching point for transitional and fluent readers!

Comprehension—Comprehension appears last in the sequence because it is the goal of every guided reading lesson and the previous scaffolds and teaching points will support the readers' understanding of the text.
